Summary

I am a Ph.D. quantitative researcher in macro-finance, fluent in Chinese Mandarin, English and French. I work for ADIA, the sovereign wealth fund of Abu Dhabi.

I am part of ADIA's quant team ("Q"). I work on assets allocation and quantitative total portfolio, as well as on macro-signal generation for systematic trading.

Professional Experience

Buy-side macro-quant, ADIA quant team ("Q")

Dynamic assets allocation and quantitative total portfolio management (TPM)

Development of quantitative tools to address the specific needs of TPM for a large sovereign wealth fund

Dynamic asset allocation against a policy benchmark under a risk budget

- Estimation of macro-regimes and cycles to polarize asset allocations based on diversification/performance
- Portfolio construction
- Minimization of rebalancing costs

Articulation between discretionary investment and quantitative models

- Developing explainable models in performance/risk attribution, including local interpretation
- Integration of priors/views from senior management in quantitative models using Bayesian tools
- Portfolio construction integrating non-gaussian views via modified Black-Litterman and goal-based optimization
- Results presentation to the senior management in a clear, non-technical way with clear actionable recommendations

Building risk models leveraging macro factors

Integration of alternative data into macro-modeling

- Dealing with limiting historical depth, attrition, unbalanced samples
- Mixed frequency modeling
- Reconciliation between standard macro information, market expectations and alternative data signals

Macro factor timing

Forecasting, nowcasting, risk modeling, big data, machine learning, inferential statistics
